A Timeless Place...

Rancho Guejito is a 23,000-acre (36 square mile) grass-fed cattle ranch and organic farm located in Northern San Diego County. It is the last intact land grant ranch of the more than 800 historic Mexican Land Grant Ranchos which is still operating as a privately owned agricultural operation. The ranch is covered by dense oak forests made up of California Oaks and rare Engelmann Oaks. Much of the ranch looks just as it did thousands of years ago.

Rancho Guejito also operates a popular wine-tasting patio on its property. There the public enjoys wines made from the ranch vineyards while listening to live music from local bands. The tasting patio is widely enjoyed by families because it is known to be fun as well as kid and dog friendly.

Rancho Guejito's cattle spend their entire lives roaming the tens of thousands of acres of green pastures, beautiful mountain meadows, and huge oak forests of the ranch. The beef is USDA labeled and verified as grass-fed, pasture-raised with no added hormones or antibiotics. The beef is sold frozen in boxed assortments direct to consumers.

Bid on this remarkable package and transport yourself to the serenity of Rancho Guejito. From the richness of the land to the sophistication of wine, and from the flavors of grass-fed beef to the melodies of live music, this is an opportunity to immerse yourself in a world where nature and culinary mastery unite. Are you ready to savor the essence of Rancho Guejito?
